

There is an alarming number of high school aged students unaware of current events, and the dangers that exist when one enlists in the armed forces. The government continues to glamorize the military and entices fresh faces with empty promises of leadership, glory, and pride for one's country. What they aren't telling students about is the rising death toll in Iraq, the negative reaction from the global community over the United States invasion, and the poor treatment vets get from their own government once back from overseas. And now there is a serious discussion about possibly reintroducing the draft!

Shouldn't you know more?
